

Story Telling – February 2018

1. KTDB continues to be a big part of the community and surrounding area; where programs are gear towards education and designed to be of special service to the minority and diverse audience. Most of the information are translated in native language in a remote area of the Ramah Navajo tribe and other diverse culture.
2. KTDB continues to work closely with local tribal government, contract school and businesses that are located within radiated power of the signal.
3. The radio station is an essential tool in this community where communication is very limited. One of the health issue of diabetes education have successfully used the radio station with vital information; informing the local and surrounding community. The presenter and parents were very thankful for the local radio station.
4. KTDB continues to address the needs of the community. KTDB speaks in Navajo language for local and diverse audience. Many elderlies do not understand or write English language.
5. First, the community are grateful for the many years this station has been in existence, thankful to CPB and Federal Government. Without the grant, this radio station would not provide the necessary content to inform serve, educate and inspire our native rural area of our remote country.